DAMAGE EXTENSIVE

Tornadoes Lash Through Area; Strike 3 Towns

By JIM COTTON
World Staff Writer

Small tornadoes and strong winds caused extensive damage to three area towns and slight damage to others throughout the Northeast Louisiana area Friday.

Jonesboro, Winnfield and Oak Grove were major targets of the damage caused by violent winds and driving rain which came and ended without warning. No serious injuries were reported.

Strong winds were followed by heavy rains at about 11 a.m. in the Twin Cities, but they lasted only a short time before the cities were bathed in sunshine.

Several persons in West Monroe reported seeing roofs of houses and buildings being lifted by heavy winds but in each case, the roof settled back without blowing away.

Heavy winds were reported in several areas of West Monroe during the early afternoon.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency at Selman Field said last night that a report was received of wind damage about 13 miles west of West Monroe. A cow was reported killed, however, the report was unconfirmed.

WINDS IN WINN

All areas reported that the rain had stopped and the sun had broken through in the late afternoon. The Twin City area is expected to be partly cloudy today and tonight with winds northerly 8-18 miles per hour.

Strict Duck, Geese Rules Draw Protest Wildlife Directors Promise Fight On Closing Of Season

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

Wildlife directors of Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi protested "drastic regulations" by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service pertaining to waterfowl before about 250 sportsmen here last night.

Fifteen wildlife officials from six states discussed the future of waterfowl at a hearing sponsored by the Ouachita Wildlife Unit.

With two representatives of the Fish & Wildlife Service present, the upshot of the hearing was this:

1. Drouths in the waterfowl nesting grounds of Canada are forcing federal game officials to consider closing the duck seasons in the Mississippi Flyway.

NO HELP

2. Deep South states — like Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi — in the Mississippi Flyway contend that closing the season would be of no help.

"Ninety per cent of the potholes (areas where waterfowl nest) have dried up," stated Art Hawkins, Mississippi Flyway representative of the Fish & Wildlife Service, of Minneapolis, Minn.

Director L. D. Young of Louisiana said, "We know there is a movement on foot at this time to close the duck season in the Mississippi Flyway. We would like to go on record that this would be a big mistake. We in the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission will work against it in every possible way."

Arkansas Director Nelson Cox and Mississippi Director John Camp protested a closed season also.

But Calvin J. Barstow, Tennessee waterfowl supervisor, stated, "Tennessee in comparison with Louisiana and Arkansas does not rate as a duck state. If a complete closure is justified biologically, the people in Tennessee would go along with it."

From Baton Rouge, Charles Bosch, executive secretary of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, said his views differed with the National Wildlife Federation director, Thomas Kimball.

"The national federation is not on record in favor of closing the season," Bosch said. "But I fear that some of its leaders are in favor of the closure."

Each of the state directors emphasized the value of waterfowl hunting in his state, pointing out that the states have invested funds in providing areas for ducks and geese.

In answer to a question by club president Lloyd Voorhees, who moderated the panel, Francis Gillette, chief of game management division four of the Fish & Wildlife Service, of Atlanta, Ga. said:

"The Secretary of the Interior Department has the final authority on seasons through treaties with Canada and Mexico."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — farm. The quadruplets' mother Twenty-one years ago Friday, died three years after they were born.

Porter Lashley went to church the father of eight children and returned home the father of 12.

Their 21st birthday was "just another day" to the Lashley quadruplets. They said the celebration during the weekend "will be just a family affair."

A family affair, though, could be hectic. Most of the brothers and sisters plan to be at the party—and there are 16 grandchildren now.

The guests of honor will be John, Beulah, Mildred and Marlene Lashley—the four who created all the excitement that snowy Sunday morning in February 1941.

Tornadic Winds Belt Downtown Vicksburg Glenn Tells Epic Story

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., said Friday in his unruffled way that space flight was "very pleasant" and that on his high adventure above the earth, he had only one "moment of doubt."

The 40-year-old Marine lieutenant colonel, a man of magnificently cool courage, told a news conference that at one point he saw flaming hunks of his braking rocket package zip by his spacecraft's window.

UNDERSTATEMENT "I thought," he said coolly, "that part of the heat shield was breaking up. I thought it could have been a bad day all around."

And that will go down as something of a record understatement. Loss of the heat shield during re-entry after orbiting the earth three times at 17,530 miles an hour Tuesday, could have turned him and his spacecraft into nothing — literally. His heat shield was, of course, okay.

The news conference wound up a busy, emotion-packed day for the sunburned and smiling astronaut. During the day he was given a medal by President John F. Kennedy, who said on behalf of the nation, "We appreciate it."

He was reunited with his wife, children, parents and in-laws and given a parade during which 100,000 people—the police estimate—where he has been undergoing a debriefing since he landed at 2:43 p.m. Tuesday.

Millions more watched on television throughout the nation. This was his return from Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas spaceport.

At the news conference he told a fascinated nation that on his first orbit he glanced into his cabin to check something and that when he looked up again, "It was like looking into a complete new star field."

This star field turned out to be some mysterious particles which in the light of a rising sun "were bright-yellowish green — like a firefly on a dark night."

These particles, unknown to scientists, were spaced about six to 10 feet apart. When one drifted up against his window and he could see it closely out of the sunlight, it appeared white and about the "size of a pinhead or about three-eighths of an inch."

The astronaut said he had no idea what they were.

He also reported that at sunset the world kept a bright corona of "color stretching to the horizon" for four or five minutes before darkness settled.

At the outset of the conference, the balding, red-haired Marine observed, "It was quite a day. I don't know what you can say about a day when you see four beautiful sunsets in one day. It

Other Areas Also Struck; Six Are Hurt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadic winds belted downtown Vicksburg and five small Mississippi communities Friday as thunderstorms buffeted the state — ushering in a cold front and freezing temperatures.

At least six persons were injured—two seriously. Tornadoes struck the Harmontown community on Sardis Lake and three areas in Tippah County.

STORES DAMAGED

Four department stores were damaged and two Negro women injured when winds accompanied by a "loud roaring sound" touched down in Vicksburg. A tornado killed 38 persons on Dec. 5, 1953, in almost the same downtown area.

The Mississippi Highway Patrol at Batesville said a twister hit the northern shore of Sardis Lake at Harmontown. Four persons were injured. Mrs. Luther DeShazo was seriously bruised and cut.

A Baptist church, store and a house were destroyed. About 25 other homes in the area were badly damaged. On the western edge of the lake, about 20 houses were damaged by high winds.

The highway patrol also reported extensive damage but no injuries after a tornado hit Chalhybeate, Tiptersville and near Walnut in Tippah County. Damages were estimated at $75,000 as 20 houses and 20 barns were damaged. Five houses were demolished.

High winds—with gusts up to 60 miles per hour—heavy rains and some hail hit most of the northern section of the state. Possibly another tornado touched down near Filler in Issaquena County, unroofing an unoccupied house.

Buildings were damaged near

U.N. Claims Cease-Fire Is Violated

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—The United Nations accused Katanga President Moïse Tshombe Friday of breaking the cease-fire agreement and said it will send troops immediately to take over Katanga from Katangese gendarmes.

Robert Gardiner, U.N. civilian chief in the Congo, wrote Tshombe that "I expect the United Nations to be allowed to go to Katanga without further delays and I expect the cooperation of Katanga authorities."

Norwegian U.N. spokesman Dik Lehmkuhl said the Katangese broke the cease-fire when gendarmes took over Katanga on Feb. 17. He also said military jeeps and armed gendarmes have reappeared in Elisabethville, giving "further indications of military activity."

Lehmkuhl said Tshombe told a U.N. legal expert last week that "the higher interests of Katanga make it impossible for the Katanga agreement to be accepted." That was the agreement by which Tshombe said he would end Katanga's secession and place the province under the Central Congolese government.

Political observers said the relations now between Tshombe and the U.N. command are the worst since last December's fighting in Elisabethville.

Solon Claims Top Officials Soft On Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gordon H. Scherer, R-Ohio, ranking Republican member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities says a number of officials in the "top echelons of this government...are soft on Communism."

Scherer, in a recent speech at Jackson, Miss., a copy of which was made available by his office Friday, named "Stevenson, Bowles, Jiminy Roosevelt, Schlesinger, Fulbright and Galbraith," and said:

"Their whole record over the years indicates they are soft on Communism."

POSTS LISTED

Adlai Stevenson is ambassador to the United Nations; Chester Bowles is special State Department representative for Africa, Asia and Latin America; James Roosevelt, son of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, is a Democratic congressman from California; Arthur M. Schlesinger is a special assistant to President Kennedy; Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and John Kenneth Galbraith is ambassador to India.

Scherer made the speech at a meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Jackson, Miss., Wednesday. Scherer is presently in California.

Before listing the six names, Scherer said "let me state as plainly and as forcibly as I can that, in expounding this theory, I am not accusing anyone of being disloyal or even having sinister motives."

He said such men "believe there is no substantial threat to our security from internal subversion."

The ego of these liberals and leftists is such that they look down on the rest of us; they feel that, because of their superior intellect—Fulbright is an example—they and perhaps they alone have the key to the solution of the world's tensions.

Boy With Rare Disease Slips From Hospital

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Larry Glascock, 13, had had enough of hospitals.

So he slipped through a window at Memorial Hospital touching off a search by more than 100 policemen and deputies. It ended five hours later in a movie house.

Larry, the victim of a rare blood disease that requires daily transfusions to keep him alive, sneaked out of his ward just a few minutes before another one was due. He is unaware of the seriousness of the ailment.

When notified, his mother, Delphia Gallant of Phoenix, was seized by fear the boy would not be found in time. She called police and the hunt was on.

Larry called once but refused to say where he was. He knew he would have to return to the hospital.

But the officers got their man. Larry was found at a downtown theater and returned to the hospital.

Larry said it was more fun watching "Pinocchio" and "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" than getting blood transfusions. He said he would probably make another break.

Tearfully glad to have him back, his mother was still debating whether to tell him why he must not try it again.

Meeting Need On Sewerage Is Declared

L. U. Fourmy, Ouachita Police juror from ward 10, said Friday that if Lakeshore area residents fail to hold a public meeting on the sewerage district issue, he doubts the Police Jury would call an election on the matter.

"A public meeting would bring out the facts," said Fourmy. At present, Lakeshore residents are divided on the issue of installing sewerage lines.

The jury has received two petitions on the matter, one in January when a group led by W. S. Nash presented a request for the sewerage district, and another at the Feb. 14 meeting when R. B. Martin presented an opposing petition with 488 names.

HEARING SET

A public hearing is set for the next jury meeting, March 14, but jurors have urged that Lakeshore residents thrash the matter out among themselves at a separate meeting, so that it will be more or less at a definite stage on March 14.

Ward 10 juror Irvin Kilpatrick and parish engineer Wayne Huckaby inspected the area this week, and suggested draining the ditches on McCain Drive and the next road, and run this water into the Old Swartz Road, then into the Bayou Desiard.

They believe this would carry off some of the surface water, so that the ground could absorb more water from other parts of Lakeshore.

This all was brought out at the jury's 1:30 p.m. purchasing committee meeting yesterday.

MAN-MADE WEATHER

Space Umbrellas, Mirrors Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Man may someday make his own weather out of a combination of tin foil and space umbrellas.

The possibility was painted Friday by Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa., a member of the House Space Committee.

Under Fulton's plan, a cloud of tin foil would be sent into space to act as a mirror. If placed in the atmosphere at the right angle, Fulton said, the space mirror could reflect sunlight onto now uninhabitable areas of Siberia and Canada, turning them into productive land.

He suggested a giant umbrella of some opaque material be fired into space. The umbrella would shade the tropical areas below it, turning them into temperate zones. Fulton said many of the world's weather patterns are nourished by the mass of hot air rising from near the equator.

But shade and heat are not the only advantages of his plan as Fulton sees it. He said his space mirror could add four hours of daylight — cutting homeowner electricity bills.

Fulton has been a member of the space committee since it was formed, and his mirror-umbrella suggestions are the latest of his unusual and sometimes controversial space projects.

He once told the Agriculture Department it should start thinking about ways of raising crops on the moon.

He later came up with a plan to set an old age home in space. Fulton's thought was that weightlessness would eliminate the hazards of falling.

Fulton has his critics, but he said at least his ideas help spark original thought.

period. The barometer fell to 29.05 at 10:30 a.m. and rose to 29.60 at 10:40 a.m.

Several homes and buildings in Oak Grove received damage as a strong wind and hail hit the town.

The Fiske-Union school received roof damage and several broken window panes in the gymnasium. The heavy wind almost cleaned the shingles off the roof of the home of Spencer Myrick. The wind also took his pump house and moved it across the yard, destroying his water softener.

Awnings were blown off the home of Roy Gamble and the strong wind turned his carport around after picking it up of its concrete slab.

A barn, owned by Charles Costello, used to house heavy machinery, was demolished.

Radio Station KTOC, located one-half mile southeast of Jonesboro, was knocked off the air as its roof was taken with the strong wind. Torrents of rain, poured down on the delicate radio transmitter equipment.

Disc jockey, Paul Stranz, who was transmitting at the time the tornado struck, at about 10 a.m., was struck on the head by falling timber but did not require treatment. He was the only person reported injured.

It will be at least Saturday before operations can be resumed, according to A. H. Colvin Jr., station manager and co-owner. The twister luckily missed the station's tower, which is located about 100 yards from the building.

In less than an hour and a half, power crews were at work at the damaged station, trying to put a temporary roof on the building.

A cabinet shop, owned by J. E. Babson on Walker Road was demolished and deposited in pieces in the middle of the road. His house, and eight or 10 other homes in the area were heavily damaged by the wind.

No one was at home at Babson's residence and no one was in the shop at the time the twister hit.

A number of smaller out-buildings, store-rooms and barns were destroyed, overturned, or blown away.

The twister also dipped down in the Southside area of Jonesboro, but this area was not heavily damaged.

Many huge pine trees were uprooted or twisted. The Southside school, which lay on a direct line between the various points hit, was unmoored.

Mrs. Lawson Alford said she was attending a meeting of Southside Baptist church and watched the twister go over, taking some of the shingles off the church as it went by.

"I saw a huge cloud and it began to rise," she described. "It came up and got into a funnel shape, and sounded like a freight train."

OUTLOOK TODAY

The high temperature expected in the Twin Cities today is 54 degrees and the low 38 degrees. The high recorded yesterday was 78 degrees and the low was 54 degrees. Rainfall fell in the amount of .22 inches.

A survey of other towns brings the following reports:

BASTROP — Wind blew in the plate glass window of local grocery. Hard showers occurred around 12 noon followed by bright sun shine and partly cloudy skies. The first part of the day was divided between showers and sun shine.

TALLULAH — A hard wind was followed by showers and a slight fall in temperatures. No wind damage was reported.

LAKE PROVIDENCE — The sky became dark around 10 a.m., and was followed by wind and rain with a hard rain occurring around 2 p.m. No wind damage was reported.

RUSTON — Skies becoming dark around 10:30 a.m. Rain and wind occurring, but neither with damaging force.

STERLINGTON — Roofs damaged and a horse shed belonging to Monroe Alford and Bobby Ramsey was intensively damaged by strong winds. A spokesman from Sterlington said that the winds and rain came quick and went quick.

extension and parish health unit. New bids are now being advertised for, on the jail extension, and will be opened at the next meeting.

Architects Johns and Neel still are working on plans and proposals on the health unit, with low bidder Tudor Construction Co. of New Orleans.

However, the Tudor bid was $65,000 above available funds at the last meeting.

Unless the plans and bid can be pared down without any radical change in design, the jury will have to advertise for new bids to meet the $260,000 available.

The health unit site has been cleaned off, except for one tree which will remain on the lot.

The purchasing committee is considering purchase of a new or good used boiler to replace a 20-year-old one in the Courthouse basement, which "could fail at any time" according to Dick Brothers, superintendent.

Brother Of Local Residents Killed In Auto Mishap

Samuel D. Smith, 35, of Columbia Falls, Mont., brother of a West Monroe, man and three West Monroe women, was killed Thursday in an automobile crash near Libby, Mont.

A native of West Monroe, Mr. Smith had lived in Columbia Falls for the past several years where he was employed as an electrician.

Arrangements for services last night still were incomplete. His brother, O. D. Smith, left West Monroe Friday afternoon for Columbia Falls.

Other survivors include the widow, a son and a daughter, all of Columbia Falls; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smith, and the three sisters, Mrs. Fred Parrott, Mrs. Julia Trichel and Miss Maurine Smith, all of West Monroe.

Cleveland and at Greenwood. About 50 homes were slightly damaged in the Leflore County seat and 500 phones were knocked out of service.

Two tornadoes were reported by the weather bureau at Jackson in the air west of Terry in Hinds County about 2:10 p.m. They were moving eastward and apparently never touched down.

After dark clouds and high winds passed over Jackson at 2:38 p.m., rains hit the city as the temperature dropped 10 degrees in five minutes.

High winds were reported throughout most of northern Mississippi. House roofs were damaged, barns and sheds topped or roofs torn off and trees splintered.

An early afternoon tornado alert covered most of northern portions of the state.

However, the weather bureau issued an alert at 5 p.m. to cover most of southern Mississippi till midnight. The bulletin said: "Scattered severe thunderstorms with one or two tornadoes, hail and locally damaging surface winds are expected to occur this Friday evening from 5 p.m. to midnight in an area 60 miles on either side of a line from 50 miles south of McComb, Miss., to 50 miles north of Dothan, Ala."

The forecast for northern Mississippi remained in effect until 7 p.m.

Mississippi's weather change came as a cold front pushed into the state from the northwest. Temperatures were expected to dip into the 20s by Saturday night.

Deputies Slated To Attend State Training School

Four representatives of the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department will attend a week-long Scientific Crime Detection School starting Monday at the Louisiana State Police Training Academy in Baton Rouge.

Sheriff Bailey Grant identified the four as Sgt. J. R. Bell, Sgt. William S. Booth, Deputy H. W. Hennen and Deputy Lamon Godwin.

Leaving Sunday for classes beginning Monday morning and due to run through March 2, they will meet at Selman Field two officers from the Morehouse Parish Sheriff's Department a Ruston policeman to form a motorcade to the Capitol City.

The program, released yesterday by Grant, will run daily at State Police Troop A headquarters in Baton Rouge and will include virtually every element of crime detection, from fingerprinting to scientific interrogation.

Directing the school will be Julian A. Martin, special training agent of the Louisiana State University law enforcement training program.

Certificates will be awarded all those completing the course by Martin and Baton Rouge FBI agent Carlie Reed.

Astronaut Tells Of Epic Flight

is pretty interesting. Three in orbit and one on the surface."

The astronaut reported that he ate on his flight at altitudes varying from 100 to 160 miles and that he had no problem swallowing.

Glenn added that when it came to eating in space he recommended something solid, "something you can hold onto," adding that space rations "should not be of a crumbly nature — like crumbly cookies."

The crumbs would go floating about and, "You couldn't get them back without a butterfly net."

In making his report to the world which watched his flight with hopeful prayers, Glenn said: "I think the best words I just about heard in my life were, 'You have a seven-orbit capability, from Al Shepard here when he gave the 'go' to me from the communicator's position. That was a welcome sound.'"

Navy Lt. Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard was the first American to enter space. He went last year and rose to an altitude of 116 miles, but did not go into orbit.

Then Glenn continued: "This put us into a new environment. We extended the realm of weightlessness. . . I'm happy to report that there were no ill effects from zero Gs."

"It was very pleasant," Glenn continued, "and I had no tendency to overreach on switches or have any troubles with the controls."

So great was his enthusiasm over flight during weightlessness that Glenn said, "Somebody told me last night that I was an addict to it. And I think I probably am. It is a wonderful feeling."

Glenn reported that he had some trouble with his yaw, pitch and roll mechanism when it was set for automatic operation, but that he switched to manual operation.

This, however, cut down on the amount of time for making visual observations of the world and space around him.

He did see the stars. They appeared in great quantity but he said the nearest he could come to explaining how they looked would be to compare them with the stars on a moonless night in the desert when the atmosphere is extremely clear.

As to the sensation of speed, Glenn noted that speed was relative and that if you have no reference point, you have no sensation.

His flight was something like a jet flight at 30,000 feet, with the clouds below at 10,000. To know this feeling, you have to experience it.

Glenn, in talking about man's ability to adapt himself to the space environment, noted: "We thought that over a period of time we might feel some ill effects from it in the way of nausea or disorientation, but there were none of these ill effects whatsoever."

"I remember thinking afterwards that we were treating this pretty blasé at the time, but the point I am making is that we all adapt very, very rapidly to these new situations, much more rapidly maybe than those of us who have been training for this for three years would have believed possible."

He noted that he just turned loose of an article, left it floating in the air until he wanted it again and then just reached for it.

"Some of the things that happened under zero gravity," Glenn continued, "have sort of demonstrated how fast a human being adapts to this situation."

"I recalled last night, when we were discussing some of these things, the fact that I had this little hand camera in my hand and when I had taken a picture and wanted to do something with the switch immediately, it just seemed normal at that time. . . rather than put the camera away, I just put it out in midair (inside the capsule) and let go of it and went ahead with the switch position and reached back to the camera and went on with the work."

As to what the world looks like from on high, Glenn said it was pretty cloudy.

"Over a good part of our track," he said, "there were clouds of one type or another. They obscured some of the areas we wanted to look at. Part of the western United States, down across northern Mexico — almost the whole Pacific was covered by one type cloud or another."

Glenn told of his troubles in flight in about the same way another man might tell of a Saturday trip to the grocery.

Shortly after he completed his re-entry phase, he exclaimed, "Boy, that was a real fireball."

Asked Friday how he felt, Glenn replied "I guess you'd say cautious and apprehensive, traveling in an unknown area, of course. We have had very little experience with a man inside a glowing fire like this one—that you can see outside the window."

In discussing the problems encountered on his space flight, Glenn said: "The automatic stabilization and control system was causing some difficulty. It didn't appear to be correcting up the way it should. I was able to use the manual control during that period and this didn't cause any trouble at all. It seemed very natural to take over the manual control after all the trainer work we've done."

The other observations that we planned to make had to go by the boards, while I tried to work out the control system problems and I spent most of the last two orbits working on this."

Then Glenn had this to say about his "fireball ride": "The ground telemetry receivers had picked up an impulse that I possibly had a loose heat shield. For that reason it was deemed advisable to keep the retro-package—braking rockets—in place during re-entry so that it would go ahead and burn off."

"By that time we would be in a high enough aerodynamic force field to keep the heat shield in place, in case it was, in fact, loose."

"This made a pretty spectacular re-entry from the capsule standpoint. As I went into the higher heat, the glow picked up. Outside the capsule was a sort of bright orange glow—outside the window."

"It became apparent something was tearing up on the heat shield end of the capsule, because there were large pieces — anywhere from pieces as big as the end of your finger to pieces probably seven or eight inches in diameter—breaking off the edge of the capsule and coming back up past the window."

"Well, that obviously was the retro-package breaking up. I thought at the time, however, that the retro package had already been jettisoned.

"So there were some moments of doubt whether the heat shield had been damaged and whether it might be tearing up itself and this—this could have been a bad day all the way around if this had been the case."

"But it was very spectacular looking out into this orange glow and seeing those big flaming chunks go back along the flight path."

Asked at the hour-long news conference what he could see, Glenn replied: "While I was off the East Coast here once I could see back across Florida. I remember stating I could see the Mississippi delta at that time. It was pretty clear along the Gulf Coast. Your view to the horizon is about 900 miles."

In wrapping up his own statement, Glenn said that after the "fireball" ride the forces of gravity got up to eight—that is he weighed eight times more than his normal 168 pounds.

Then he said: "Parachutes functioned in completely normal fashion and that's probably the prettiest little old sight you ever saw in your life: to look out that window and—that parachute . . . that's just about as pretty as anything you see at that point."

Glenn said he stayed inside the capsule, planning to climb out the top, but it got hot inside and "since we were already on deck (of the destroyer Noa) it was hardly worth the trouble, and I would get out and be comfortable — so I did. We blew the hatch on the side and I came on out the side hatch."

And thus ended the saga of Feb. 20 by Glenn himself.

As to what the world looks like from on high, Glenn said it was pretty cloudy.

"Over a good part of our track," he said, "there were clouds of one type or another. They obscured some of the areas we wanted to look at. Part of the western United States, down across northern Mexico — almost the whole Pacific was covered by one type cloud or another."

Glenn told of his troubles in flight in about the same way another man might tell of a Saturday trip to the grocery.

Shortly after he completed his re-entry phase, he exclaimed, "Boy, that was a real fireball."

Asked Friday how he felt, Glenn replied "I guess you'd say cautious and apprehensive, traveling in an unknown area, of course. We have had very little experience with a man inside a glowing fire like this one—that you can see outside the window."

In discussing the problems encountered on his space flight, Glenn said: "The automatic stabilization and control system was causing some difficulty. It didn't appear to be correcting up the way it should. I was able to use the manual control during that period and this didn't cause any trouble at all. It seemed very natural to take over the manual control after all the trainer work we've done."

The other observations that we planned to make had to go by the boards, while I tried to work out the control system problems and I spent most of the last two orbits working on this."

Then Glenn had this to say about his "fireball ride": "The ground telemetry receivers had picked up an impulse that I possibly had a loose heat shield. For that reason it was deemed advisable to keep the retro-package—braking rockets—in place during re-entry so that it would go ahead and burn off."

"By that time we would be in a high enough aerodynamic force field to keep the heat shield in place, in case it was, in fact, loose."

"This made a pretty spectacular re-entry from the capsule standpoint. As I went into the higher heat, the glow picked up. Outside the capsule was a sort of bright orange glow—outside the window."

"It became apparent something was tearing up on the heat shield end of the capsule, because there were large pieces — anywhere from pieces as big as the end of your finger to pieces probably seven or eight inches in diameter—breaking off the edge of the capsule and coming back up past the window."

"Well, that obviously was the retro-package breaking up. I thought at the time, however, that

SUMMARY
The third successive substantial snowfall in less than a week plagued the upper Midwest Friday where from 1 to 2 feet of snow covers the ground over much of South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan. Following the path of recent snows, this one is also headed towards the northeast corner of the country. Heavy snow warnings are up from northern and central Illinois eastward into western sections of New York State and Pennsylvania. South of the snow belt a narrow band freezing rain and sleet caused slippery highways all the way from northeast Kansas to northern New Jersey and the suburbs of New York City last night.

At the same time potent weather activity of a different nature broke out over the interior southeast. Heavy thunderstorms, packing heavy rain, hail and high winds—developed around a strengthening low pressure center passing north-eastward through Tennessee while in the warm moist air to the south of the low a rash of tornadoes wrecked considerable property in the state of Mississippi. Injuries were reported. This activity was expected to lose much of its punch as it drifted eastward during the ensuing late night hours.

Other activity through of a lesser degree occurred to the far west. Here, showers drenched the upper Pacific coast, turning to scattered snow over the Sierra Cascades inland to the Rockies. On a more pleasant note, the far southwest enjoyed sunny mild weather which extended eastward into Texas and Oklahoma.

Large temperature contrasts shaped up between the Southland and the northern part of the country. The mercury heated as high as the 80s in Florida, southern Texas, the Carolinas and Georgia, whereas by sunset near zero readings ranged from the northern and central Rockies across the upper plains into northern Minnesota. The freezing line curved down from New England to southern Kansas thence westward into the Rockies.

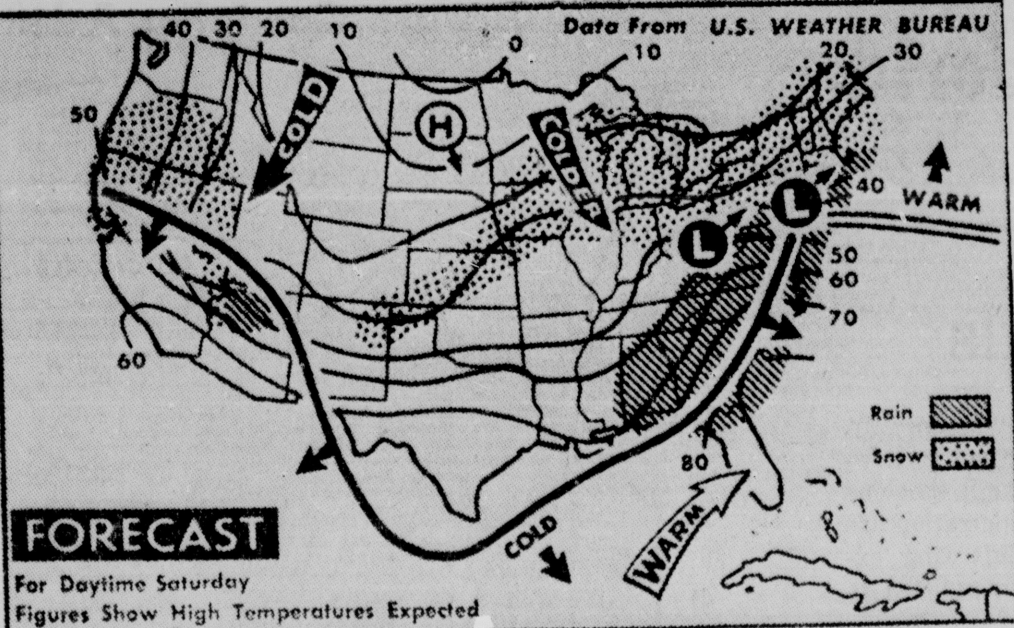

The outlook for Saturday - snow is expected to spread into upstate New York and northern New England while a band of freezing rain and sleet creates hazardous driving conditions from central New York eastward to southern Maine. Farther down the east coast, rain is forecast with scattered showers or thundershowers likely over the Carolinas, Georgia and northern Florida. Snow over the upper Midwest should taper off to flurries as colder drier air moves into the midwest region. Out west, little change in the precipitation pattern is anticipated, however it will become colder in the Pacific Northwest and also in northern Arizona and much of New Mexico.

JFK, British Will Reject Summit Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan were preparing Friday to tell Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev that no amount of propaganda would force them into a summit conference at the opening of next month's Geneva disarmament talks.

Officials here and in London said the Western leaders would reply within the next day or two to a lengthy and somewhat truculent note which they received from Khrushchev Thursday.

Tokyo Political Reporter Plans Visit To Crossett

CROSSETT (Special) - Eiichi Matsui, political reporter for the Japan Broadcasting Corporation of Tokyo, Japan, will be in Crossett Feb. 28, and remain until March 4, as the guest of the Crossett Rotary Club.

Neil Rhodes, chairman of the International Relations Committee of the Rotary Club, says that among his other interests in visiting America, Mr. Matsui would like to discuss with American industrial leaders the impact of Japanese competition on American markets, particularly in the fields of textiles and electronics. He would also like to see automation in operation in the production of steel, automobiles, and paper products. He would like to meet with several political leaders and with members of the press, radio and television to discuss Japanese-American relations both political and economic. He will visit the political science classes in the Crossett schools.

Crossett is the only Arkansas town the Japanese political expert will visit during his tour which will also include Washington, D. C.; Boston, Mass.; Harvard University; Niagara Falls and Buffalo, New York; Detroit, Mich.; Chicago, Ill.; and Knoxville, Tenn.

Thursday and Friday Mr. Matsui will visit the Crossett industries, schools, be interviewed over Radio Station KAGH, and meet local political leaders and press representatives. EDITORIALS

More About Radicals

A recent editorial in the Monroe Morning World stated there were vastly more radical leftists in the Democratic party than radical rightists in the Republican party. Since this editorial drew some adverse comment, it seems proper to continue the discussion of radicals.

The noun "radical" is described as meaning, under one definition: "In politics, one who advocates radical and sweeping changes in laws and methods of government with the least delay, especially changes that it is believed will equalize social conditions, or remedy evils arising from them. Where Radicals form a party they usually act with the Liberals when not strong enough to act alone."

One learned person who chose to act as a critic apparently came up with the idea that anyone who believes 100 per cent in a principle or what he thinks to be right is a radical. It apparently is this person's belief that an individual must be lukewarm in regard to any principle of government if he is not to be a radical.

Under the quoted definition, a person who believes in maintaining the "status quo," or keeping things as they are, is not a radical, no matter how strong, or even how bitter, his belief may be.

Again we say that there appears to be at least 100 times as many radical leftists in the Democratic party as there are radical rightists in the Republican party. It is well known that the present national administration is filled with persons who want swift, radical changes in our laws and constitution for the purpose of setting up a socialist state. There are also a good many persons of this kind in the Republican party in the north. In comparison, in either party, the swift and violent changes in the law might be described as infinitesimal.

Cartoons often paint a graphic picture. A recent such cartoon showed a person with an umbrella, holding it over a radical left-winger and saying: "We must protect freedom of speech—and all that jazz." The other half of the cartoon showed the same person with the umbrella but in this case the so-called radical right-winger was being bashed on the head with the umbrella and told to "shut up." The title on the cartoon asked: "Anybody you know?" It will be recalled that, not long ago, President Kennedy made a speech in which he assailed the so-called "right-wing extremists" but did not mention the radical leftists.

Since one critic is so eager for facts on the leftists in comparison to the rightists with extreme views, we are giving herewith some facts from editorials carried in the Los Angeles Times and the Chattanooga News-Free Press, which indicate there are more radical leftists serving in President Kennedy's administration than there are radical rightists in this country's entire political movement, including all members of both the Democratic and Republican parties.

Among the founders of American for Democratic Action is Adlai Stevenson, our present ambassador to the United Nations, who wants this country to give the U.N. $100 million for worthless bonds so the U.N. can stay in business for another year and function for the benefit of Russia and other members of the communist bloc. Serving as top executive of the A.D.A. have been such notables as Chester Bowles, who had to be shunted from his duties in a state department position, and Senator Hubert Humphries, who was a presidential aspirant.

The Chattanooga News-Free Press has this to say:

"It has been noted that President Kennedy, in a recent Los Angeles speech, poured a heavy attack upon 'right wing extremists,' while giving little attention to the real major problems that face our country and the Kennedy administration. It has been pointed out that the few right-wingers Mr. Kennedy attacked are not in power but, by contrast, high echelons of the Kennedy administration are literally packed with left wing 'extremists' who are in a position to exercise great power."

The Los Angeles Times has noted that the Americans for Democratic Action has suggested such things as:

1. Aid to Red China.
2. Diplomatic recognition of Red China.
3. Admission of Red China to the United Nations.
4. Ratification of the dangerous genocide convention.
5. Exclusion of Spain from the U.N.
6. Support of the International Labor Organization.
7. Opposition to United States action against Castro.
8. Adoption of the Brannan farm plan.
9. Compulsory health insurance (socialized medicine).
10. Federal price, wage and rent controls.
11. Repeal of the Taft Hartley act.
12. Compulsory union membership.
13. Giving the president power to change tax levies.
14. Abolition of seniority rules in congress.
15. One-sided ending of nuclear bomb-testing by the United States.

It was also pointed out by the Los Angeles Times that the Kennedy administration includes these members or former members of the A.D.A. who are currently powerful in making and executing policy.

Orville Freeman, secretary of agriculture; Charles Murphy, undersecretary of agriculture; Robert G. Lewis, deputy administrator of price supports; John A. Baker, director of agricultural credit services; Abraham Ribicoff, secretary of health, education and welfare; G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state; Phillip H. Combs, assistant secretary of state; Chester Bowles, special assistant to the president; Katie Louchheim, Bowles' former assistant in state department; Harrison L. Woodford, special assistant to the president on civil rights; Theodore C. Sorensen, special adviser to the president; Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., administrative assistant to the president; Arthur Goldberg, secretary of labor; Esther Paterson, assistant secretary of labor; George L. P. Weaver, assistant secretary of labor; Frank W. McCulloch, chairman of the national labor relations board; Henry M. Fowler, undersecretary of the treasury; Fredrick C. Belen, assistant postmaster general; Archibald Cox, solicitor general of the U.S.; Howard Morgan, federal power commissioner; Philip Elman, federal trade commission; George Docking, director of the Export-Import bank; Kenneth J. Galbraith, ambassador to India; James Loeb, ambassador to Peru; Wilbur J. Cohen, congressional liaison officer for the department of health, education and welfare; Mrs. Jim D. Aiken, also congressional liaison officer in H. E. and W.; Jonathan B. Bingham, U.S. representative on U.N. trusteeship; Thomas K. Finletter, U.S. ambassador to N.A.T.O.; Charles Donohue, labor department solicitor; Charles H. Stoddard, director of interior department's review staff; William Taylor, special assistant to the director of civil rights commission; Robert C. Weaver, housing and home finance administrator; Jack T. Conway, deputy housing and home finance administrator; Sidney H. Woolnes, commissioner of community facilities.

As a senator in 1953, John F. Kennedy, now president said: "I'm not liberal at all. I never joined the Americans for Democratic Action. I'm not comfortable with those people."

If President Kennedy is not comfortable with those people, he must be in constant torment for it is

ALLEN AND SCOTT

Discontent Of Republicans

With Kennedy Administration Riding High, Leaders Of 'Loyal Opposition' Are Displaying Faint Hearts

This is the winter of Republican discontent. With the Kennedy administration riding high, the faint hearts and disoriented leaders of the party of "loyal opposition" are exhibiting a singular disregard for American political history, which gives convincing testimony that even at its lowest ebb, a major political party can always stage a comeback.

More amazing is that seasoned politicians, some of whom rode through the New Deal, when the Republican party experienced futility in its attempt to combat Franklin D. Roosevelt, are now shaking their heads just as they or their predecessors did then, talking of their chances of defeating Kennedy in 1964 as something highly improbable.

Right now, Kennedy popularity may be at its peak. The impression given the voting public through polls, based on a minuscule slice of public sentiment, is that an amazing percentage of those polled are pro - Kennedy.

If true, that would be an amazing rise since the 1960 election, when Kennedy's national vote plurality was 111,803 - the smallest vote margin for a presidential candidate since Benjamin Harrison in 1888.

His electoral vote margin of 230 was more convincing, but there were eight states in which a shift of one per cent in the popular vote would have switched the electoral vote from Kennedy to Richard M. Nixon.

The ability of President Kennedy and his family to deal with international affairs, at a time when the United States badly needs a few breaks in that field, is a matter of more or less satisfaction to most Americans. It undoubtedly boosted Kennedy prestige, but there is no reason that it should be too disheartening for the loyal opposition.

There's a rocky road ahead in international affairs for the Kennedy administration, and its domestic program faces rough going too. If the President rides fairly close to the crest of the wave through 1964, it is logical to expect that he will be reelected, but there's a long road to travel.

That's the long range view. There's more optimism about the congressional election nine months hence. As of today, Republicans see cause for courage over the political horizon. They have found a good omen in the slim victory of a Democrat in a special election in Michigan, in a district which had been overwhelmingly Democratic for a quarter century. That may not seem much but on the political slide rule, on which majorities are the unit of measurement and victories are merely results, it means a great deal.

Uneasiness is general among House Democrats who explain that the same feeling prevails among the voters, and that in such times criticism is usually leveled at majority members of Congress. Members of several important committees, including Ways and Means and Agriculture, say that their constituents are complaining more and more about pending legislation, with particular censure of the new farm bill, the postal rate increase bill and the proposed tariff reductions, though on the latter there is an equal measure of approval.

Some veterans in both parties point out that General Eisenhower and President Kennedy share one apparent advantage. The former President, politicians used to say, was held above the level of political partisanship and though his party controlled Congress during only two years of his eight year term, Eisenhower himself retained support from both sides of the political street.

Now it is being said that President Kennedy is being given some of the same preferred treatment - that criticism directed at the Democratic Congress is not necessarily aimed at him. However, few questions that Republican gains in House and or Senate next fall if they occur will be construed as a dent in Kennedy prestige.

In 1938, at the peak of the Roosevelt years, the Republicans made a sensational gain of 80 seats in the House, under direction of Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Rep. - Mass.) who was chairman of the Republican congressional committee as well as House minority leader.

Republicans again overturned the Democratic majority in 1946, in the year after Harry S. Truman had become President. That advantage was lost in 1948 by an inept Republican presidential candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Regardless of what they may have to look forward to this year, Republicans must realize that they will need the breaks and smarter leadership than they had to beat Kennedy in 1964. By that time, they may be back at the point where the course of events will have made that 110,000 vote margin, as distributed among the states, all they will have to overturn.

It's Happening

Wife Won't Call In Another Doctor: Fears Offending One

A wife is worried about her husband who is very ill. In spite of complete confidence in her family doctor she would like a consultation to relieve her mind. But she doesn't ask for it because she doesn't want to hurt her doctor's feelings.

A cruel mother is punishing an innocent child because he wets the bed.

A doctor is still using this antiquated joke on the young man pacing up and down outside his wife's delivery room: "Cheer up, son I never yet have lost a father."

Over the back fence one neighbor will be saying to another: "Don't you think you're taking a chance letting him operate? He's so young, you know."

A child, no longer an infant, is saying to her mother: "You're sure it's all right for me to put the thermometer in my mouth? You never took my temperature this way before."

A man with severe chronic bronchitis and emphysema will be smoking cigarettes, one right after the other, and wondering why "this pesky old cough holds on."

A young father will say "damn" as he stubs his toe in the dark while getting up to give his baby a bottle.

A man will gladly pick up a $40 or $50 tab at a dinner party, yet hesitate to take X ray because they "cost so much."

A blushing young bride will be in the family doctor's office to speak to him about something "very personal" a week after the honeymoon.

A patient will learn that a bill is sometimes harder to swallow than a bitter pill.

A hospital will be "full up" and both doctor and patient will be happy that they can get temporary sleeping quarters in a corridor.

A man will be saying, "I'm not afraid to die. When you gotta go, you gotta go." When he's sick, he's the biggest coward of them all.

Thousands of doctors treating hundreds of patients, will never get used to understanding what gives so many people such courage and fortitude, when struck down by prolonged and painful illness.

A little boy, being examined, will kick his doctor in the shins.

A mother will be saying to junior: "Doctor won't hurt you; and the doctor will add: "It may hurt a little, Jimmy."

almost certain that he has in his administration a far greater number of leftist radicals than he could possibly name among the "extreme rightists" in the entire country without assistance, even if he had a whole day to do it in.

President Kennedy has no fear of the "extreme rightists." His attack upon them was a part of a planned political scheme to be effected in this off-presidential year, and he knew it would be followed immediately by a hullabaloo from the radical leftists in his official family.

Selling Costly

Those Who Oppose Expense Accounts Should Peddle Screws

Whoever in the treasury is responsible for the current excitement over expense account deductions, needs to be put on the job of selling nuts and screws or some such objects, so that he will learn what it really takes. After all, the customer does not have to buy the ABC brand if he can get a German brand for less money or a Japanese brand for still less. Even Canadian goods are sold in the American market to the advantage of the Canadians.

Apart from price, salesmanship is a tremendous factor in any business and salesmanship costs money. I often receive letters from businessmen denying that theater tickets in New York, steaks at night clubs and similar expenditures are necessary but it depends upon whether one is selling shoe-laces or steel. It is not that the customer wants to be bribed but he likes to feel important enough to deserve the "Diamond Jim Brady" treatment and if the American salesman cannot give it to him, a British salesman can right here in New York.

Goods being goods, the buyer gives the good fellow a break, it not bothering him at all that the bill is paid by Uncle Sam or John Bull or whoever has money for such purposes. True, yachts are expensive and I do not particularly like the ocean, but many a big deal is consummated while the characters are deep-sea fishing, as they call it.

If that is the way business is done, who can really object? Our task is to sell goods and to provide work for more than 60,000,000 of our citizens and if anybody believes that that can be achieved with no effort, he does not know how to sell anything and make a profit at it.

Before the depression of 1929, nobody had any doubts as to how to sell. Charley Schwab could go into any market and unload American steel and the smoke poured out of the stacks in Pittsburgh and Bethlehem. Instead he moved about the world and American steel competed with any of them and Charley spent money like a wild man, making the customer feel good and swear by Charley's product. Expense accounts are normal in business everywhere except in the minds of the treasury officials who probably learned salesmanship at the Harvard Business School. If we try hard enough, we shall, in the next quarter of a century, turn our own market over to some other country. We have been very careless over the years about our products and salesmanship and the Yankee salesman, who could sell anything from the Brooklyn Bridge to a wooden nutmeg, today wonders why a Hongkong tailor can sell suits in New York - the textile market of America.

Something is wrong if we cannot hold our own in our own markets, particularly now when the theoreticians are complicating the problem by depriving a salesman of his expense account. Of course, businessmen will find a way to protect themselves from being impoverished. If nothing else is left to them, they will bootleg their expense accounts as they bootlegged whiskey when Mabel Walker Willebrandt sought to legislate morality. There must be a way out and we are not going to go broke because a student of economic virtue prefers to give our markets to our competitors.

Let us return to realism. An expense account ought not to be a warrant to engage in petty larceny, but there ought to be enough accountability skill and wisdom to protect the treasury from losses of revenue and not at the same time ruin business. Of course, the businessman who lies on his expense account is a thief but that is no reason to stand in the way of sales or to give Canadians an advantage over the United States.

We are becoming so good-natured that we shall be cutting our own throats, like those who insist on smoking Cuban cigars no matter how much it helps Fidel Castro. So, we are financing the sale of steel pipe to Soviet Russia to destroy our policy in central Europe.

HOLMES ALEXANDER

Who Backs Down?

Nuclear War Should Be As Threatening To Russia As U.S.

WASHINGTON, D. C. - You don't contradict the President. He doesn't get answered back - except in some oblique, inoffensive way.

Something like this happened recently in a speech here last October at the John Carroll Society dinner by the statesman - scholar Charles Malik, former Ambassador from Lebanon, now a professor at the American University. Dr. Malik gave the best report I have heard to the President's oft - spoken thesis that we must have a No Win policy against Russia - a policy made imperative because (as the cliché goes) "there is no alternative to peace." Mr. Kennedy reiterated this thesis last February 14th.

Question: A number of the right wing critics say that your policy is based on a No Win policy in the cold war. Would you address yourself to this charge?

The President: "There will be no winners in the next nuclear war, if we have one."

This is all very familiar. But now let us hear Dr. Malik on the same subject:

Malik: "When one expresses the hope that the West will stand firm at this or that crucial point . . . one is often confronted with the rejoinder: 'Then you are advocating nuclear war and the destruction of the human race?' Of course nothing could be further from one's mind than that. But nothing is more pleasant to Communism than to have the West constantly retreat under the threat of war. . . . Nothing is more urgent than to deploy the forces of freedom . . . so as to make, under the umbrella of nuclear stalemate, the threat of nuclear war at least as threatening to Communism as it is to the West."

This is exactly what such Right Wingers as Senators Thurmond and Goldwater are trying to do. It is what the President ought to do. He ought to "make . . . the threat of nuclear war at least as threatening to Communism as it is to the West."

Well, why doesn't the President do so? In my opinion there is approximately a six - word answer to that: Stevenson, Wiesner, Rostow, Schlesinger, Bowles and Cleveland. On the record of what they have said and done, and of their known positions, these advisers and some others are the President's Accommodation Men. Dr. Malik, a much better diplomat than I am, pays tribute to them without using any names. You might say that Dr. Malik, in another passage of the speech just quoted is talking about Accommodationists Anonymous.

Malik: "I am certain they do not want to see the West overwhelmed, but some of them, I feel do not at heart want to see Communism overwhelmed either . . . They appear to be unwilling to contemplate the possibility of erasing it from the earth. They seem badly to miss it then. Some people - worthy products of Western thought and life - feel emotionally and existentially happier and more secure in a world in which Marxism - Leninism is powerful and entrenched. What is it in the spirit of Marx that so strangely captivates them?"

Neither Dr. Malik nor I nor any responsible and respectful critic of the President and his advisers are talking about Reds-in-government. We are talking about intellectualists, pacifists, coexistentialists. These persons, as Dr. Malik is saying, don't want to overwhelm Communism, with or without nuclear war. They do not want to see Communism obliterated from the earth by starving it to death, scaring it to death, revolutionizing it to death.

The service in turn makes its recommendations to the U. S. Department of the Interior for the season. A framework is then handed down to the states.

UNOFFICIAL

While Voorhees said he was told by a Fish & Wildlife Service "high official" this week that the service would recommend a closed season for the Mississippi Flyway, Gillette replied, "I haven't heard it discussed in official channels."

Hawkins said, "It's true that there is a great deal of sentiment for a closed season."

Hawkins also brought out that a three-man committee from Canada and the United States will conduct a survey of the problems in Canada.

"The hope is that a solution can be reached," Hawkins stated.

But Young warned, "Periods of low production of ducks such as is now occurring in the Prairie Provinces of Canada is nothing new and should not be used as a basis for pushing the panic button and even suggesting the close of the duck season."

Other officials present for the hearing included the following: Louisiana — Assistant Director Richard Yancey, John D. Newsum, chief of the game and fish division, education biologist Joe L. Herring, and education staffers Jack Britt and MacFadden Duffy.

Arkansas — Gene Rush, chief of game, Dave Donaldson, waterfowl biologist, and Wayne Hampton, a commissioner from Stuttgart.

Mississippi — W. H. Turcotte, chief of game and fisheries, and Lewis Bays, waterfowl biologist.

Bill Allen, field representative for the Wildlife Management Institute, of Hot Springs, Ark., attended also.

Laos Parley Interrupted By Gunshot

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—The noise of a nearby gunshot Friday interrupted a key meeting between Laotian neutralist leader Prince Souvanna Phouma and right-wing strongman Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

Bodyguards went into a flurry of activity. But an investigation determined that the shot was fired accidentally by one of Souvanna's paratroopers as he toyed with a pistol in his tent.

Souvanna conferred with Gen. Nosavan, defense minister in the Royal Laotian government, in the third day of his talks with political figures aimed at forming a coalition government, composed of his neutralists and pro-communists and the right-wing faction.

The neutralist leader told newsmen that basic issues finally had come under discussion in the third day of his talks. He refused to say whether progress had been made, but added: "I may have

Turkey Premier Gets Ovation As Revolt Ends

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Premier Ismet Inonu received a standing ovation from Parliament Friday following collapse of an armed forces uprising against his government.

The white-haired, 78-year-old premier rose and nodded quietly to the more than 400 deputies from all political parties. They cheered him for more than three minutes.

It seemed appropriate acclaim for the onetime general who stubbornly refused to give in to demands from mutinous army units that he step down and clear the way for a new military government in Turkey.

The Turkish high command moved swiftly to heal breaches created between the armed force in the short-lived uprising. About 70 reformist officers who led the mutiny were quietly transferred to new assignments, and 400 cadets, who supported the mutiny and patrolled Ankara's main thoroughfares for a while Thursday night, were shipped home for a month's leave of absence.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International

A Federal army marched triumphantly into Nashville, Tenn., on Feb. 25, 1862 with bands playing "Yankee Doodle" and "Hail Columbia."

They ran up a U. S. flag over the capitol of Tennessee, last state to secede from the Union and first to lose its capitol to Federals.

The flag was a special one — the original "Old Glory." It belonged to William Driver, a former New England ship captain, staunch Union man and now a resident of Nashville. The flag had been presented to him in 1831 for use on his ship, the Charles Daggett. He called it "Old Glory" and after he retired from the sea he kept the flag well hidden from the Confederates.

He dug it out of an old sea chest when the troops of Brig. Gen. Don Carlos Buell entered Nashville that day.

Nashville, a city of about 30,000 in 1862, was unfortified and was occupied without a fight by Union troops streaming through the big breaks in the Confederate defense line blasted open by the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson and the Federal victory at Mill Springs, Ky., in January.

Only Columbus, Ky., on the Mississippi River remained of the line Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston had set up to defend the middle Confederacy.

Federal occupation ended a week of terror and disorder in the Tennessee capital.

About a week before — on Sunday, Feb. 16 — while Nashville was celebrating false news of victory at Fort Donelson, word of its surrender by the Confederates to Brig. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant came through and turned the jubilation into a near-panic.

Rumors spread that Federal troops were within a few miles of the capital. Churches were dismissed so parishioners might flee before the expected bombardment started.

Col. Basil Duke of Johnston's staff wrote:

"Some wept at the thought of abandoning the city to a fate which they esteemed as dreadful as utter destruction, and many, infuriated, loudly advocated burning it to the ground. . . . Crowds of soldiers mingled with the citizens who thronged the streets all night; and yells, curses, shots rang on all sides, in some houses women were pale and sobbing, and in others there was even merriment, as if in defiance of the worst."

In the afternoon, Gov. Isham G. Harris and other state officials left for Memphis on a special train carrying the official records.

This prompted the banks to box their money and send it away. All that on top of panicky citizens trying to leave town sent transportation costs skyrocketing. By nightfall any sort of a horse and wagon commanded $25 an hour, payment in advance.

The weary retreating Confederate troops of Maj. Gen. William J. Hardee began streaming through the streets Sunday morning from Bowling Green, Ky., which had been abandoned when the forts fell. They carried tales of bloodthirsty Yankees hot on their heels. That compounded the city's fear.

Brig. Gens. John B. Floyd and Gideon Pillow came in on Monday with some troops who had escaped with them from Fort Donelson. The first thing they saw was a mob looting a steamer loaded with army meat. Similar events were occurring all over town.

The Confederate supply stores had been opened to the citizens but the citizens did not wait for the merchandise to be passed out. They took all they could get by force.

Only one quartermaster officer remained on duty when on Tuesday Col. Nathan Bedford Forrest rode in from Fort Donelson with his cavalry. He went to work with characteristic Forrest energy and his troops drove back the mobs with the flats of their swords. Soon he had a semblance of order restored and began to move out the remaining supplies to Chattanooga, Tenn., and Decatur, Ga.

A rifling machine, one of the few in the Confederacy, was sent to Atlanta. Hundreds of wagonloads of flour, 250,000 pounds of bacon and 600 boxes of army uniforms followed. By the end of the week and before the Federals appeared, Forrest had saved most of the supplies which had escaped the mobs.

The military, over the protests of the civil government, meanwhile decided to destroy the two bridges across the Cumberland River. The railroad bridge was burned and the cables of the suspension bridge were cut.

On Monday, Feb. 24, the first of Buell's scouts appeared across the river from Nashville. That evening Mayor Cheatham crossed over by boat and formally surrendered the city.

Occupation of Nashville, the fall of Forts Henry and Donelson and the retreat of the Confederates toward the south border of Tennessee touched off celebrations all over the North.

But there was no jubilation at the White House, only grief.

A little before Sunset on February 20, 11-year-old Willie Lincoln had died. The doctors said he had "bilious fever." Probably it was typhoid or acute malaria, not uncommon diseases in Washington where sanitation was primitive.

Willie was not a battle casualty but his death stopped the wheels of war for several days. Even irascible Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war, refused to break in on President Lincoln's grief with pressing war business.

Willie, christened William Wallace, was Lincoln's third son. One Eddie, had died in Springfield, Ill. Robert Todd Lincoln, the oldest son, came from Harvard for Willie's funeral, which was held in the crepe draped East Room of the White House. Tad (Thomas), the Lincoln's youngest child, lay dangerously ill upstairs. Mrs. Lincoln was too grief-stricken to attend the funeral.

Young Willie was a quiet child with a bent for reading and writing. Not long before he died he wrote a poem and sent it to the editor of the National Republican, a Washington newspaper. The subject was "Lines on the Death of Colonel Edward Baker," a friend of the Lincoln family who had been killed in the battle of Ball's Bluff.

Willie's first stanza read:

"There was no patriot like Baker, so noble and so true; He fell as a soldier in the field, his face to the sky of blue."

The editor pronounced the lines "good for one so young."

Even by March 1, the President had not shaken off his grief. In a delayed answer to a letter he mentioned it was late because of "a domestic affliction."

But presidents can't afford much time for personal grief and Civil War problems were coming from all sides.

The Civil War brought the first legal standards for the treatment of prisoners and populations of occupied territory. The Army code, published in 1863, was observed in the Franco-Prussian War and was the basis of the Hague Conventions.

Civil War soldiers supplemented their hardtack and bacon in many ways. This one was relayed by David L. Thompson, Co. G, the New York Volunteers: "One of my tentmates started out on a foraging expedition... and returned shortly struggling with a weight of miscellaneous plunder; a crock of butter, a quantity of apple butter, some lard, a three-legged skillet weighing several pounds and a live hen. That night we had several immense flapjacks, the whole size of the pan." The hen was tethered to a tentpeg but escaped during the night, perhaps with help.

yesterday, will meet Enterprise, victors over Start, 57-55, at 1 o'clock.

Following immediately at 2:30, Monterey will take on Lisbon who advanced to the semi-finals with a thrilling, 53-52, win over Eros yesterday.

In girl's semi-final play, Ogden faces Atlanta this morning at 10 a.m. and Marion squares off against Georgetown at 11:30.

The girl's championship game starts at 7 p.m. and the feature contest of the meet, the boy's title game, begins at 8:00 tonight.

Coach Jack Barinsfather's Wolves, champs of District 8-C, took command early against the hustling, but outmanned, Panthers last night and make a complete rout of it by the end of the opening period.

WOLVES ROMP

Monterey's starters played most of the first half but saw no action at all in the second half of the runaway win.

Roddie Crouch poked in a gratis toss with 1:14 gone to break the ice for Monterey. Don Reeves, Marion's fine guard, countered with a long jump shot to give the Panthers a 2-1 lead.

Marion led only once more the entire game and that came with 5:35 left in the initial period when Bennett Taylor connected on a free throw.

From then on it was all Monterey.

Sophomore Chris Rhodes sparked the early rally with his scoring and rebounding.

The six - three pivot man tied the score at 5-5 with a free toss and then, following Tad Wilson's jump shot, he rammed in four straight points to put Monterey's lead to six points, 11-5.

Marion misused on the ensuing play and with the speed of lightning the talented Wolves raced to a 17-5 lead.

By the end of the quarter Monterey was in front, 23-9, and headed easily to victory.

The second period was the same story except a supporting actor took over the lead role.

WILSON STARS

Wilson, who set up on a scoring spree of his own in the second quarter and by the time the dust had cleared the senior marksman had bombed in 11 points.

The five - eleven speedster scored on driving layups, jump shots and long sets shots to account for his total.

Gene Tiffe, although scoring only four points the entire half, was also one of the determining factors in Monterey's domination.

The six - two lumping jack cleared both boards time after time to give his teammates scoring opportunities and limit the opponent to only one shot.

Crouch and Joey Paul, who round out the Wolves' starting five, both played an outstanding defensive game and were half-hawks every minute they played.

With 16, and Lynnwood Wiley, a reserve center, scored 10 to lead the winners attack.

Reeves paced the losers with 13 and Taylor pumped in 10.

The second half was a repeat of the first with Monterey's dependable reserves applying the pressure nearly the entire half.

Monterey outscored the Panthers 20 to 16 in the third and 11 to seven in the fourth to put the finishing touches on the 79-41 victory.

Athens, Lisbon Win Opening Boys Games

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Athens used the rebounding of Dwight Carpenter and the scoring punch of all-stater Don Henry to outclass Sikes 73-48, and Lisbon roared to behind in the last seconds to nip Eros 53-52 in the first two boys games of the Class C Regional basketball tournament here yesterday afternoon before a large crowd in the Ouachita Junior High gym.

TROJAN PAIR

Henry and Carpenter teamed up to move away from Sikes late in the first quarter after both clubs had battled on even terms for more than four minutes.

Henry, a six - foot unanimous choice on last year's all state squad, went on a scoring spree that started midway through the initial quarter and didn't end until the win was clinched and he was removed for a reserve at the close of the third period.

Farmerville Ends Season With Two Wins From Delhi

FARMERVILLE (Special) — The Farmerville Farmers closed their 1961-62 basketball season last night with a pair of District 1-A triumphs over the Delhi Bears.

The varsity victory evened the Farmers' overall mark at 16-16, and brought their league record to 5-7.

Curtis Allen hit 14 points to pace the Farmers' victory in the main event. He was followed closely by teammates James Baron, who collected 13, and Faris Clifford, who netted 10.

L. E. Patterson hit 23 for the losers to lead all scorers.

Delores Byrnside poured in 28 points to carry the Farmerville sextet to a 44-39 triumph in the preliminary contest. La Jo Hayes assisted her with 15.

Snider was high for the Delhi girls with 15.

Krause Carries Tigers To Win

Sicily Island (Special) — All-Stater Albert Krause bombed in 24 points here last night to propel the Tigers over Oak Hill, 88-66, in a Bi-District game.

Krause got able assistance from Grady Weeks who popped in 17 points, Joe Peace who hit 12, and Jon Dennis with 10. Dennis and Weeks were also the "big wheels" for Sicily Island under the boards.

James Ford connected for 18 for the losers. Edwin Townley and Gary Laborde each hit 15 and Kinney Nickols added 10.

The Tigers take on the winner of the Simsport - Florien game next Tuesday night.

Sicily Island is now 35-4 for the season.

shot for most of his damage. Henry pumped in 22 points before the half and wound - up with 30 by the fourth period.

He hit a number of 30 - footers, the kind you can't defense, and the few times he missed, Carpenter, a 6-4 1/2 senior, was there to rebound and drop it in.

When Sikes had the ball, Carpenter limited the shorter Eagles to one shot most of the time and against these odds imposed by the Trojan twosome, Sikes was doomed.

RONNIE ROLEN

But the Eagles from Winn Parish got a good performance from Ronnie Rolen, who sank 19 points, and, using a fast attack, drove in well to keep the score close early in the game.

Sikes scored four points before Athens could scratch and then the score was tied four times before Henry kicked off a scoring burst that sent the Trojans in front for good.

The senior guard and playmaker sandwiched three consecutive long shots between a pair of Ricky Spurlock fielders as Athens scored 10 straight points to race from a 10-10 deadlock at 3:40 to a 20-10 advantage with about a minute left.

Sikes never caught up after this key spurt and by the end of the quarter it was Athens 24, Sikes 12.

KEEP PACE

The Trojans continued their pace, notching 23 points to Sike's 10 in the next stanza for a 47-22 halftime lead.

By the fourth period Athens emptied its bench and the Eagles were able to storm back with 17 points to narrow the score somewhat.

Carpenter was second in Trojan scoring with 14, mostly on his rebounding and subsequent layups. Spurlock followed him with 11, hitting a number of long jumpers.

Little Johnny Thompson, a 5-6 1/2 sparkplug did well for Sikes, hustling until the end and finishing second behind Rolen with 11 points. Sherman Pennington was next with 10.

In the second game a determined Lisbon five used a full court press to overcome a 44-38 third quarter deficit and squeeze past Eros by one point.

Paced by Glenn Sautters, who scored 18 points, the Lisbon Eagles jumped in front early in the first quarter and led most of the game.

Eros was never ahead in the initial half though the score was tied three times, once early in the opening period at 7-7 and twice late in the second quarter, at 23-23 and again at 27-27 with :07 second left.

The Panthers gained this last tie with their favorite trick. They stalled to get the last shot just before the buzzer and with :07 to go little David Lewis was fouled. He sank two shots for the momentary tie, but the Eagles charged back down court and Dave McAdams scored from the corner at the buzzer.

Eros battled back after the break with all - stater Eugene Harper contributing eight of his 22 points, to shove Eros in front for the first time.

The 6-5 senior got Eros the lead 37-36 with 4:30 left and the Panthers then raced to their six point third quarter advantage 44-38.

LAST SHOT

Again Eros went for the last shot in the third period and Harper held the ball, connecting just before the buzzer on a long jumper.

In the final period Lisbon returned with the full - length press that had been started late in the third stanza.

A trio of foul shots caught Lisbon up to three points, 44-41, with only 30 seconds gone in the strategy - filled finale.

But Eros momentarily solved the press to score three consecutive field goals and take a seemingly unmountable eight point lead 49-41 with five minutes left.

However, a pair of buckets by Sautters, who played a fine game in the clutch, and two free throws by James Rich narrowed the score to 49-47 with 4:15 left.

The teams traded gratis tosses then and the margin was still two points at 51-49 with 3:30 left.

Eros went into a freeze at this point, only to have Sautters come through, with three straight steals that eventually won the game.

After Lewis scored on a charity toss for the 52nd Eros point, Sautters got the ball, was fouled and cashed in on both shots to narrow the count to 52-51 with 1:15 left.

Eros came back down court, only to have Sautters whiff the ball again and pass off to McAdams, who sank a field goal from the circle to put Lisbon in front 53-52 with a minute left.

Again the Eagles got the ball, and this time tried their own freeze and did it successfully until the game ended.

Jerry Jacobs and Bobby Harper Eugene Harper in Eros scoring with 10 apiece, while McAdams had 12 and Jim Koch 11 for Lisbon.

TWO STROKE EDGE IN 2ND ROUND

Phil Rodgers Cracks Par For Lead In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Phil Rodgers, a chunky 23-year-old from California with matchless self confidence, cracked par while most of the field faltered Friday and he took a second round lead in the $30,000 Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Rodgers, spending his first year on the professional tour, fired his second straight 69 for a 36-hole total of 138. He had a two-stroke edge over veteran Bo Winger of Odessa, Tex., and slender Wes Ellis Jr. of West Caldwell, N. J., and he took a second round lead tied at 140.

Defending champion Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., who shared the first round lead with Ellis and on the professional tour, fired his Ed Oldfield of Golf, Ill., came in two over par for a halfway total of 142. Oldfield ballooned to a 76 and a 144 total.

Despite the stiff, 32 m.p.h. breezes that swept the 6,700-yard City Park course, Rodgers said he played "almost a perfect round of golf."

The Styrons

Of the many achievements in athletics Northeast Staters can brag about this year, none surpass those of the track team. And ranking at the top of the list in track are the Styron twins, Don and Dave.

Anytime you break or match a world record you reach the zenith in achievement. A single world mark is a rarity. Most thinclads never get close to one.

But the Styrons, who are undoubtedly the greatest twin combination on the cinderpaths, both have more than one standard to their credit.

Don, who is the elder by approximately 24 minutes, holds the world record in the 223-yard low hurdles with a 21.5 mark set in a 1960 meet at Louisiana State.

He also matched the world record in both the 60-yard high and low hurdles this spring. His 60-yard high hurdles mark is 7.0 run at the Lubbock, Texas Invitational meet. In the Coliseum Relays at Montgomery, Alabama, Don matched the world standard of 6.7 in the 60-yard low hurdles. He was also the national AAU low hurdles champ last year.

Brother Dave tied two world records this spring. First he equalled the 60-yard dash record of 6.0 at the Lubbock Invitational, then matched the 70-yard dash standard of 7.0 at the Mason-

Dixon games in Louisville, Kentucky.

Dave has also been clocked in a wind aided 9.3 in the 100, has run the 220 in 20.2 and the 440 in 44.0.

The Twins attended Wheat Ridge high school outside Denver, Colo., where they played football and basketball in addition to participating in track. They came to Northeast in 1958 with their high school Coach Lew Hartzog.

After dropping out school in 1961, they ran under the banner of the Southern Illinois track club, before returning to Northeast for their senior year of college.

They were co-winners of the Gulf States Conference "Most Outstanding Athletic" award in 1959 and 1960 and are both Olympic prospects.

But all but Don's 220-yard hurdle record were set this spring during the short indoor season. Northeast doesn't open its outdoor competition until March 2-3 in the Southwestern Recreation Meet in Fort Worth and there is no telling what more could happen before the year is up.

Charley Conerly

Robert Daley, in an article in Esquire, once called the pro quarterback's job the hardest and loneliest in sports. No pro fan doubts the physical courage demanded of quarterbacks, wrote Daley, but most overlook the moral courage demanded.

A man who might agree inwardly, though he has never voiced it, and doubtless never will, is Charley Conerly, who retired this week after being quarterback of the New York Giants since 1948.

The moral courage of which Daley wrote is twofold.

First, according to Allie Sherman, coach of the Giants, the quarterback must have the "ability to throw without fear." He must have absolute faith each pass will connect, said Sherman. This Conerly had or he would have left the game long ago.

But it was the second kind of moral courage at which Conerly excelled. This, wrote Daley, is fortitude in adversity. The quarterback is the focal point of his team, the leader, the star. Every time a game is lost or a season ruined, the quarterback gets the blame.

Of more than one hundred men who tried to play quarterback in the last eleven seasons, Daley wrote, Conerly is one of the five who did it best. Many will agree.

Yet no one took the riding Giant fans gave Conerly. When the Giants collapsed in 1953, winning only three games, crowds booed him every time he ran on or off the field. Newsmen castigated him in the press. Men cursed him in restaurants.

"Good - by, Charlie" and "Back to the Farm, Conerly" signs hung from the upper deck of the Polo Grounds. Once, when he and his wife went to a basketball game in Madison Square Garden, he was booed roundly.

Baseball Briefs

Change Plans

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI)—Thirty-four San Francisco Giants officially launched spring training Friday in the chill of a desert morning that has already changed the battle plans of manager Alvin Dark.

Because of the cold that brought ice to each of the five diamonds, Dark announced that next week he would send the boys out at 11 o'clock instead of 9 a.m. "It's 15 degrees warmer by 11," said Ice leader.

Shortstop Jose Pagan, unsigned but willing, arrived, satisfied with his terms. Pagan's agreement to salary leaves only two Giants not yet in the fold — first baseman Orlando Cepeda, who still is in Puerto Rico trying to up his $27,500 of last year to $50,000, and pitcher Jack Sanford, who is reported driving to Arizona from his home in Prospectville, Pa.

Gentile Works

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Jim Gentile, the Baltimore Orioles' slug-ging first baseman who reported to camp ahead of schedule, started to make good Friday on his intentions to improve against left-handed pitching.

The mammoth first baseman, who will collect $30,000 this season off his 1961 performance, which included 46 home runs, belted two over the wall off a pair of Oriole rookie southpaws.

Manager Billy Hitchcock said he'd give his pitchers a few more days of easy throwing before starting squad games for the battersmen, probably next Wednesday. Still missing at Friday's practice was catcher Charley Lau, one of two remaining unsigned players.

5AI FACE HAMPERED

Face Hampered

PORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — The only minor ailment to Pittsburgh Pirate in the first two days of spring training for the battersmen was a slightly battered middle finger on relief pitcher Roy Face's right hand.

Face developed a blood blister and quit throwing Friday but did his usual running in the outfield. He is expected to be back throwing Saturday.

Rookie pitcher Jack LaMabe reported Friday but Vinegar Bend Mizell is still absent with permission and Diomedes Olivo is believed enroute from the Dominican Republic.

Far Apart

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Ed Doherty, general manager of the Washington Senators, admitted he and star outfielder Jim Piersall still were far apart in their salary negotiations.

Doherty grimly observed: "This could be getting serious."

Piersall and first baseman Dale Long, neither of whom is due in camp until Feb. 28, are the only two "holdouts," although no player actually is considered a hold-out until March 1.

Report Ready

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Norm Siebern and Jerry Lumpe, who formed the backbone of the Kansas City Athletics' infield last season checked into camp Friday, three days ahead of schedule. Both reported in excellent condition.

Siebern and Lumpe enjoyed their greatest seasons as major leaguers last year. Siebern, a first baseman, led the A's in RBI's with 98 and in home runs with 18. He also batted .296.

Lumpe ended the season with a .293 average. Which made him the top hitter among major league second basemen.

Fights Fat

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Minnesota's Earl Battey, the majors' top defensive catcher last season,

THE STERLINGTON High School girls won the District 3-B basketball championship this year, their first in the league, and defeated Forest last night in the bi-district match to advance to the regional playoffs. BONEY SPARKS WIN

Rebels Outscore Chieftains, 44-43

By WAYNE KING
World Sports Writer

Gene Boney, the West Monroe Rebels' sparky little forward, came through with a three-point play with only 29 seconds remaining in the game to give the Rebels a dazzling, 44-43, come-from-behind victory over the Calhoun Chieftains here yesterday afternoon.

With slightly over half a minute remaining in the game and Calhoun leading, 43-41, Boney stole the ball on the front line and raced down the court for a crisp shot to tie the count at 43 all.

However, the nifty little ball-handler was fouled while making the shot and calmly dropped in the free throw to give the Rebels their 44-43 victory.

West Monroe was in command all but the final minute of the first half, but at that point Calhoun took the lead for the first time, at 22-20, and remained out front until Boney's clutch play in the closing seconds.

The game was the final one of the 1961-62 campaign for both quintets. Coach L. V. Norris' Rebels finished with a 70-20 record and Coach Jerry Lovett's Chieftains compiled a 22-21 season mark.

This was the third meeting of the two clubs this season and gave the Rebels a 2-1 edge for the series. Calhoun won the first game, 51-37, then West Monroe squeaked past the Chieftains, 53-52, in the first round of the Ouachita High School tournament.

Boney capped high - scoring honors in yesterday's exciting battle with 21 points, to bring his season total to 401. He popped in eight field goals and five free tosses for his game - leading total.

James Futrell looped in six fielders and four charity shots to lead Calhoun with 16. Teammate Paul Thompson connected on six field goals for a total of 12 points.

Big Jerry Chapman, the Rebels' senior pivot, fired in six jump shots for 12 points, and also did a fine job on defense and on the Rebels' starting team, added seven points, and played a tough defensive game.

Boney started the game the same way he ended it, with a three - pointer. After the teams had battled for 1:17 without either managing a score, Boney was fouled while getting off a jump shot and promptly added the free toss to give the Rebs a 3-0 lead.

The host team extended the margin to 6-0 before Futrell sank a follow - up shot with 4:30 left in the initial period.

The quarter ended with West Monroe ahead, 12-8, but the Chieftains went on the warpath in the second quarter. They tied the score three times — 16-16, 18-18 and 20-20 — before Futrell hit a jumper with 59 seconds remaining in the half to put the visitors ahead, 22-20, for the first time in the game.

Dorris cashed in a gratts toss with 23 seconds left to cut the deficit to one point, 22-21.

Calhoun led by as much as seven during the third period, 30-27, and held a four - point advantage going into the final quarter, 31-27.

The Chieftains retained a six-point advantage through most of the final stanza, and were ahead, 43-37, with three minutes playing time remaining.

At that point the Chieftains started freezing the ball in an attempt to run out the time. However, Jimmy Hudnall dropped in a couple of tip - ins for the Rebels and narrowed the deficit to 43-41 with 48 seconds remaining. 19 seconds later Boney came through with his clutch play and West Monroe had its 44-43 triumph.

Ramsey Sparks

Boston's Victory

Over Syracuse

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics moved closer to their sixth straight Eastern Division championship by defeating Syracuse 121-107 Friday, paced by Tommy Heinsohn's 33 points and a clutch appearance by Frank Ramsey.

The Celtics blew this National Basketball Association game open by outscoring the Nats 35-26 in the second period.

Ramsey contributed 10 points on coming off the bench, two vital rebounds and several assists.

It was Ramsey who set up two baskets which broke the eighth, and last, tie and then tallied twice himself to keep ahead of the holy pursuing visitors.

Then the former Kentucky ace joined Heinsohn and Casey Jones in a run of points which pulled Boston away steadily.

During the period Casey Jones, Heinsohn and Bill Russell had six points apiece and Bob Cousy contributed five assists.

Syracuse lost most of its hopes after a poor shooting third quarter when it could garner only 18 and from then on the Nats were strictly chasers led by Dave Gambee who finished with 28 points.

Heinsohn came on in a fast finish, scoring 17 of his team's last 25.

The victory moved the Celtics' magic number at four. Any combination of Boston victories or Philadelphia defeats adding to that number spells another Eastern Division title.

The triumph, however, was costly to the Celtics because Sam Jones, colliding with Nat veteran Dolph Schayes in the third quarter, re injured his left knee. He was carried from the floor and though the report on his condition was not serious he will be out of the next two games.

Sam Jones had 19 points while Ramsey and Cousy had 18 each.

The contest is the next-to-last of the season for Coach Lenny Fant's Indians. They end the campaign Tuesday night in Lafayette against Southwestern in a GSC game that will not affect the conference standings.

Northeast, 16-7 for the season, has not lost a game since dropping a road decision to tough East Texas Baptist Jan. 30. In the month of February, the Redskins have swept two roads games and six home contests.

One of the eight straight victims was Spring Hill, beaten by a 83-70 count in Monroe Feb. 12. Coach Glen Murphy's Badgers gave Northeast a stiff battle before falling, outscoring the Indians from the field and almost edging them in rebounds.

Murphy is expected to start Joe Nolle (6-1), the team's leading scorer, Gerald Lewis (6-3), Greg Bernbrock (6-0), K e n Dalton (6-3) and Skip Viragh (6-5) or Ron Meier (6-7). Nolle scored 16 points against Northeast, Dalton 11 and Meier, who started the game on the bench, and Bern-brock 10 each. Meier also pulled down 13 rebounds. Lanny Johnson, who was held to 10 points by Spring Hill in the first meeting of the teams, scored 28 points in Northeast's 84-77 victory over Delta State here Thursday to up his average to 20.8 points a game. He's expected to spearhead the Tribe offense against the Badgers.

Sophomore Jimmy Walker (6-4) also boosted his scoring average in the Delta contest. He is now averaging 13.2 points and is also picking off rebounds at a 8.3-a-game pace. Robert Cook (6-5) is the top Indian rebounder with an 11.3 average.

Cook and 5-11 Stuart Toms are tied for third in scoring with 8.6 averages. Steady Bob Groves (6-2) is averaging 4.7 rebounds and 5.0 points.

The other members of the Northeast traveling squad and their scoring averages are Jerry Snelling (5-1), Milton Linder (3-4), Larry Butler (4-3), Jerry Salley (5-7), John Varin (4-3), Irby Gamble (1-4) and Raymond Hawkins (1-8).

Snorer Puts His Sounds On Tape

If your husband insists he doesn't snore, let him prove it. Mrs. Don Fitch of New Haven, Conn., insisted her husband was a heavy snorer. He disagreed. One day he decided to put an end to the controversy by showing his wife that she exaggerated his nocturnal rumblings. He put a tape recorder at his bedside, and fell off in a sound sleep. The playback was a revelation to Fitch, who now has 1½ hours of snoring time recorded. The experiment proved to be an entertaining one, also. The Fitches use the tape recording to amuse their friends. "It never fails to get a party off to a good start," says Fitch.

SHAPELY CHAISE is one of objects selected from round the world by George Jensen to make outdoor living more comfortable here. Round mats in foreground, woven of sea weed in the South Sea Islands, dry quickly after showers. Large Mexican ceramic pots serve as planters or convert to table with the addition (under glasses) of a round marble top. Oversized ice-bucket at far right is from Portugal and made of quick drying cork. Strange sculptural standing piece near window is electrified to enhance the patio at night.

Spring Is Good Time For Outdoor Life Evaluation

Spring seems as good a time as any to reevaluate and spice up the decoration of the outdoor living room. Current offerings are so full of fun and whimsy, they offer a temptation to even the most restrained homeowner.

Umbrellas, for example, have never been brighter and well deserve a prominent place in the sun. For an extravagant setting there are some unusual (and expensive) ones from India, attractive in odd squared off shape, brilliant colors and fringe trim. For a more casual setting, there is an umbrella made of rush fibers put together in such a way that it resembles the thatched roof of a tropical hut. And for an individual touch, there is the portable umbrella fitted with a clamp that can be attached to a single chair.

Chairs have lost their purely functional quality and add a note of gaiety to the outside scene.

Perhaps the most delightful of these is a chair with iron legs and frame, with painted tin back and seat. Meant for a protected patio, it is painted with animals, fruits and flowers in that realistic technique known as trompe l'oeil, which produces berries so convincing one feels they may squash if sat upon.

Nor has comfort been neglected. A full length rattan lounge is upholstered with webbing treated in a new fashion. The woven strips are of foam wrapped with plastic, giving them an unexpected resilience. Another lounge, this one of aluminum, can change position with a flick of the finger: it operates on a push button principle.

Even the old fashioned hammock has been updated for today's use. A made-in-California one is concocted of sturdy wood slats and hangs from strong aircraft cables. A lady-like version of the traditional tension easer appeared in a model room this fall and might very easily be imitated by the amateur. It, too, is meant for a somewhat sheltered area.

To make it, a length of heavy printed velvet was first protected with a Scotchgard process which resists water and dirt, and

NASSER LEARNS LESSON

CAIRO (UPI)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser told a mass rally Thursday night that the lesson learned from the breakup of the United Arab Republic was "never to compromise with reactionaries." The rally was held to commemorate the union of Egypt and Syria four years ago.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

"Dear Mrs. Eldred:

"My boy is 6 years old and in the first grade. My problem is that he is hesitant, almost afraid, to cross a street alone.

"We live a little way from school. When he was in kindergarten, I took him and brought him home. Now he goes full time and I find going back and forth eight times is too much for me. He knows how to go alone, but wants me to cross every street with him. If he goes alone, he will wait and wait, or cross half-way and run back.

"I must have done something wrong when he was little and ran into the street. I remember trying to explain the dangers, but must have frightened him. What can I do, now?

"He also dislikes playing outside after school." — Mrs. M.K.

ANSWER
There is always the possibility of frightening a small child in an effort to make him cautious, but now that he is older he should break the apron strings.

He needs companions near his own age to help him overcome his fear, and an older child to lean on until he is ready to strike out alone.

Get a responsible 5th or 6th grade boy in your neighborhood to walk with him. Pay him a small fee for this service. If you do not know of one, ask the principal to recommend one to you.

He probably does not have any close friends to play with after school. Is he timid about making friends, too? Ask him what boy he likes in his class and invite him to lunch or to come over after school. Find out which children live close to you and do all you can to encourage their friendship.

NEEDS PLAYMATES

If he is an only child and never has played with other children, this could account for much of his timidity. You need to make an effort to provide him with playmates so that he will become independent of you.

When you are cautioning him against any activity, stress the "how" rather than the possible consequences. Children can be taught to protect themselves from harm by being told specifically what to do. Their "why" can be answered simply by, "So you won't get hurt."

The child naturally reflects the parent's attitude. If this is over-protective or fearful, he may lack the confidence and courage he needs to be independent.

The free leaflet, "The Timid Child," is available to readers of the column. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 63 to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy, 17. My parents are wonderful but they are too strict.

I am a fair student and manage pretty well in most subjects but I am failing biology. My mother and father can't help me because they don't remember anything about biology. My girl friend is very good at it and she has been helping me several evenings a week after supper.

After my last card my parents decided I should stay home evenings and figure out the biology homework myself. My mother claims all we do is dance and that my girl does the work after I leave which is why I don't know anything.

I was really making great progress until the folks loved the boom on me. Please help. — Bum GRADES

Dear Bum Grades: You would do better with biology if there was no chemistry to worry about.

Get a fellow to help you with your homework. Or ask your folks to hire a tutor. Your report card suggests you have been doing more dancing than reading.

Dear Ann: I'm engaged to a handsome guy who has a way with women. He wants me to marry him but insist that we keep it a secret. When I asked why, he said because marriage will be an emotional shock to his system and he must get used to it gradually.

I was willing until he asked for $300. He hasn't worked for two months and didn't want to tell me. He owes on his car, his insurance and his rent.

I have a good job but I'm far from rich. I love him deeply but I don't want to support any man. He says when people are in love there is no yours and mine, only ours, and that everything in a family should be shared.

He swears by your column and says this is your philosophy, too. I'm confused and I need your help. —CLOUDY SKIES

Dear Cloudy: I believe in sharing. I also believe both parties should contribute something. What is HE contributing besides his good looks?

Don't float any loans to this guy and don't marry him secretly. Marry him only when he has a job and is willing to carry his share of the financial load.

Area Leaders Oppose Farm Legislation

A movement was underway in eight area parishes to explain objectionable features of the new version of the omnibus farm bill backed by U. S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman.

The meeting was called by the Grains Advisory Committee of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation, which is headed by White.

The measures under attack are contained in bills numbered H. R. 10010 and S. 2786, now being passed by both houses of Congress. In a telegram sent to Senators Allen J. Ellender and Russell Long, and Representative Otto Passman, and signed by all persons present at the meeting, the group said in part:

"We agree there is need for a feed grains and wheat program different from the one in effect, but do not feel that this is the answer. We feel furthermore that S. 2786 and H. R. 10010, if passed, would impose restrictions detrimental not only to Louisiana, but to the way of life presently enjoyed by all American citizens. We urge you to do all in your power to kill S. 2786 and H. R. 10010 in the committee hearings."

Among those in attendance at the meeting were: Ouachita Parish, Paul Ransom, John H. Filhol, Meyer Greenwald, Pete Godwin, Bruce F. Gregg, W. J. McDonald, Drew Anderson, Hugh M. Vick, N. W. McHenry, Charles R. Venable, Peter West and John H. Birdsong, Joe H. Dixon and Dr. J. W. Cummings; Caldwell Parish, J. M. Rowland, Clayton James; Franklin, John Lee Kincaid and T. C. Burglars Strike On Anniversary

JONESBORO (Special) — Burglars got an early start in Jitney-Jungle Grocery's 23rd anniversary celebration yesterday.

The celebration was scheduled to begin yesterday morning. Burglars struck between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m., taking approximately $66. Authorities said the culprits entered by breaking a plate glass front door. They pried open the cash register and escaped through a back door.
